

B.C. Tel's past disputes affect present layoffs

Herald Staff Writer

TERRACE— Unresolved issues left-over from previous labor-management disputes are making their presence felt in B.C. Tel's attempts to lay-off between 80 and 90 workers in its Terrace District.

The lay-offs scheduled to begin Aug. 4 involve about one quarter of the 350 B.C. Tel employees between Houston and the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The exact number of lay-offs is complicated by a clause in the collective agreement between B.C. Tel and the Telecommunications Workers Union (TWU) which states that temporary employees must be laid off before regular employees.

About 45 regular employees, of whom about 25 reside in Terrace, have been given lay-off notices.

The lay-off's revolve around a previous decision taken by B.C. Tel in 1980 to phase out its Terrace operating centre by 1983 or 1984.

According to Terrace customer service manager Tony Prall, since the decision to shut down the centre only temporary employees have been hired.

Although Prall says those operations are still necessary, according to the collective agreement they must be laid-off before any regular employee.

In order to cope with the situation Prall says the regular employees, mainly craftsmen and clerical workers, were offered the operating jobs.

However, after a meeting last week with Canada Employment officials and all other parties involved, Prall says it now appears the regular employees will not take the operating jobs as it would reduce their UIC benefits.

He says it now appears the temporary operators will remain on the job while the regular employees are laid-off.

TWU Local 33 representative Ken Blanes said he was surprised at the news.

Blanes said as far as he knew all of the regular employees had been receiving retraining to take over the operating jobs.

None of the employees had so far refused a transfer Blanes said, although none would work for the first week after the lay-off in order to ensure they would receive their full UIC entitlements.

The temporary nature of the operating jobs means none of the operators can be sure how many hours of work they will be called in for each week. This means regular employees would have to use UIC benefits to supplement whatever extra they can earn as temporary operators, Blanes said.

The union is not happy with the regular employees' transfer to temporary status, since they will only be postponing their job loss.

B.C. Tel has promised any operator with two years seniority another job somewhere in the province, but Blanes said many employees cannot move because of commitments in this area. All of the employees are also taking pay cuts by becoming operators, he said.

The Terrace lay-offs are part of 2,000 announced by B.C. Tel several months ago. Those lay-offs occurred when the union refused to accept a bargain with the company involving wage reductions and roll-backs.

B.C. Tel has about 11,000 workers in the province in a total work force of about 16,500.

The union tried to have the Canadian Labor Relations Board declare the lay-offs an illegal lock-out but the board ruled in favor of B.C. Tel. The union is appealing that decision and has threatened to take the whole issue to arbitration, claiming that the lay-offs are the result of technological change and not poor economic conditions.

The lay-offs are bound to affect subscriber service, Blanes says, since they are coming from productive workers and not from the 5,500 company's non-productive employees. The cuts especially affect the northern division he says since the company will be forced to bring in workers from the south to make up for the losses.

Prall says the lay-offs are the result of the first down-turn in business B.C. Tel has had since the second world war.

He says the company has always had to plan for growth before.

The Terrace District had avoided the general downturn in business because of the projects underway in this area, Prall said, "until the bottom fell out in June".

Kitimat residents petition for disarmament

Herald Staff Writer

KITIMAT— Although the idea has been rejected once by Kitimat Council, a newly formed coalition has gathered close to 600 names on a petition urging council to reconsider its position and held a referendum on nuclear disarmament this November.

The Kitimat Involvement in Nuclear Disarmament (KIND), a coalition of anti-nuclear groups in the district, has been collecting signatures for the petition and hopes to present it to the Aug. 9 council meeting.

Organizer Bob Goffinet says the date itself is significant since it marks the anniversary of the atom bombing of Nagasaki at the end of World War II.

Kitimat council turned down the first proposal made by alderman Ray Brady to hold a referendum on nuclear disarmament in conjunction with the municipal and school board elections this November.

At the time, the council voted against the referendum saying it had only limited symbolic value and would cost too much.

Goffinet says KIND has estimated the cost of holding the referendum at around $200 and says the group would be willing to go part way towards meeting the cost if that proved necessary.

"The first time the council let it slip through because they didn't take it seriously," Goffinet says. "Now that so many people have demonstrated their interest they won't have reasonable grounds to reject the proposal, especially if we are willing to help out with the expenses."

KIND takes the position that the citizens of Kitimat should be concerned about atomic weapons since Kitimat or Prince Rupert may well be a target for nuclear destruction in the event of a war.

"Kitimat is one of only three deep-water ports on the West Coast and has a big industrial smelter," Goffinet says. "It must be at least a secondary target in case of a nuclear war. If development continues to go on in Prince Rupert then it could well be construed as a primary target."

KIND has also been collecting signatures for a second petition which Kitimat resident Jeannette Camazzola will take to Japan to present to the mayor of Hiroshima in a ceremony on Hiroshima Day, Aug. 6.

The group is also planning some sort of ceremony for either Hiroshima Day or Nagasaki Day possibly involving an ecumenical church service or a candlelight march.

KIND's top priority now is to have Kitimat residents join over 4,000,000 other Canadians in voting on the nuclear disarmament issue.

"If a council is really listening to the people in the community it would know the number of those that support this position," Goffinet said. "Council should recognize those people and allow them to vote. The people of the community deserve to have the choice made available to them."

KIND has scheduled its next meeting for the council chambers Aug. 9 if the petition does come up on the council agenda. The next regular meeting will be held Aug. 25 at the Northwest Community College at 7:30 p.m.

Ottawa takes tough price controls stand

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government took a tougher stand on its price restraint plan Tuesday but offered few new details on how it's going to work.

Treasury Board President Donald Johnston said all federally controlled price increases should be held to six per cent this year and five per cent next year — except domestic energy hikes and export prices.

However, his statement didn't go much farther than the brief mention in the June 28 budget that it was intended to flesh out.

He said a cabinet committee will automatically review increases larger than six per cent to decide whether they are merited by "exceptional circumstances."

And cabinet will roll back any higher increases set to come into effect after the budget, Johnston added.

He also confirmed the policy will apply to all prices set by government departments, agencies, Crown corporations (such as Canada Post and Air Canada) and regulatory agencies.

A policy statement is expected in August.

Johnston also moved to clear up confusion about wage controls by announcing in the Commons that senior managers will be denied merit bonuses above the six- and five-per cent limits.

Progressive Conservative MPs charged Monday that between 7,500 and 10,000 top bureaucrats would be eligible for merit pay increases of up to 15 per cent.

Johnston said the decision to deny merit bonuses was made by cabinet Tuesday. Meanwhile, a Commons committee studying the wage-restraint bill defended public servants after a business group called the workers a whining, privileged minority that wants power to "hold the Canadian taxpayer to ransom."

"You're using the language of Hitler," New Democrat MP Rod Murphy told the 5,000-member Canadian Organization of Small Business.

And Liberal MP Dennis Dawson rebuked group spokesman Geoffrey Hale for jokingly recounting what he said one senior public servant told him: It's cheaper to shoot a government employee than to fire him.

The businessmen said the restraint legislation is a good start but other measures are required, including a hiring freeze, increased user charges for government services and large-scale cuts in spending.

Later, the committee was told the legislation, which also suspends collective bargaining for the next two years, is a far-reaching denial of rights and freedoms for 500,000 federal employees and should be withdrawn.

If the bill is passed despite labor opposition, it should be amended to ensure collective bargaining is maintained and that workers at the low-end of the pay scale do not bear the brunt of the pay ceilings, added the Inter-Union Committee Against Wage Controls, a committee of 10 public service unions.

The federal deficit, expected to be $19.6 billion for this fiscal year, was the subject of controversy in the Commons during debate on legislation to grant the government additional borrowing authority.

Secretary of State Gerald Regan said provinces will not receive federal transfer payments, pensioners won't get their monthly cheques and social programs will be cut if the government doesn't get another $11 billion in borrowing authority to help cover the deficit.

The government received authority to borrow $6.6 billion in June and has more than $3 billion in borrowing authority left over from last year.

Conservative finance critic Michael Wilson said the government is asking Canadians to steal from their children when it allows budget deficits to accumulate.

Meanwhile, more than $7 billion in unemployment insurance benefits will be paid this year — but the government has no idea whether it will make millions of dollars in overpayments as it has done in the past, senior Employment Department officials said.

The department stopped keeping records of its mistakes after the auditor general spotted $290 million in overpayments at the end of 1978, the public accounts committee was told. Instead, it established long-term programs to improve the system.

More than 1.3 million persons were unemployed in June.

Polish dissidents released

WARSAW (AP) — The Polish regime released 1,227 interned dissidents today, hours after Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski announced a relaxation of martial law regulations and said military rule could be lifted by the end of the year if Poland remains calm.

Jaruzelski, premier and chief of the Polish Communist party, also said the government would welcome Pope John Paul's visit to his homeland but not next month as originally scheduled. As he spoke, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, announced at the Vatican that the Pope had postponed the visit until next year.

Government officials said 913 dissidents were freed outright and another 314 placed on leave. They said 637 internees were still being held, and that all women internees were freed.

Neither the government nor Jaruzelski said whether Lech Walesa, leader of the now-suspended union, Solidarity, and other prominent dissidents were among those still confined.

"If the advantageous changes persist without a relapse into tension, then the WRON (the Polish acronym for the martial law council) will approach the supreme organs of power for the suspension of martial law," Jaruzelski said.

"It is the intention of the WRON that the conditions making it possible to suspend martial law turn out to be right by the end of this year."

Clad in full-dress summer uniform, the general told the Sejm (parliament) about a series of other moves to relax martial law. His speech was delivered on who killed nine British soldiers and wounded 51 other people in two London parks.

The British and Irish governments condemned the two bombings Tuesday, and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher vowed her government will not rest until the "evil and brutal men are brought to justice."

Restraints expected

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia is expected to enter the six-per-cent world of restraint within a week when Premier Bill Bennett outlines drastic new measures to cut government spending at all levels.

Bennett and various ministers have been meeting with representatives of labor, the medical professions and the education fields to outline B.C.'s financial problems, seeking their co-operation to get through what Bennett calls "the toughest recession, the toughest economic times in the world since the Great Depression and the Second World War."

It is understood they will be asked to roll back voluntarily any increases received this year to six per cent, or face a greater legislated rollback.

Officials are preparing the first quarterly fiscal report, to be released in two weeks, and the cabinet is concerned that if revenues continue to fall and expenditures increase, the government will be short about $1 billion by the end of the year.

Finance Minister Hugh Curtis said Tuesday in the legislature that the most recent forecast for B.C. is real economic growth of 0.5 per cent this year.

In his April budget, Curtis forecast a 1.4-per-cent growth. There also is concern that B.C. may lose its triple-A credit rating, and the government will have to repay small businesses a considerable amount of taxes paid in advance.

Bennett and Finance Minister Hugh Curtis have ruled out tax increases or borrowing to meet current expenditures, so they will have to cut spending even further to avoid a deficit.

"Spending less in the public sector is not an option for Canada, it's an absolute mandatory requirement," Universities Minister Pat McGeer said Tuesday.

The 57 members of the legislature will provide the example shortly under a bill which is expected to eliminate, effective Aug. 1, the automatic 11.9-per-cent increase they got Jan. 1.

This means they will receive an increase of about six per cent for this year, and their salaries and tax-free allowances probably will remain frozen at the 1981 level until January, 1984.

An earlier bill, rolling back the increase to eight per cent, was withdrawn last week.

Bennett also is expected to announce a downward revision of his controversial wage restraints program reducing the eight-to-14-per-cent limits on wage increases in the public sector to four to 10 per cent with the goal of not exceeding six per cent overall.

Increases in the second year of the two-year program probably will be limited to four to eight per cent, again averaging six per cent, rather than the percentage increase of the cost of living originally provided.

Another cabinet minister said the beauty of the revised provincial program is that it can be blamed on the federal government, which recently outlined a two-year program limiting wage increases to six per cent in the first year and five per cent in the second.

"We have a national disease of major proportions," said McGeer, noting that Canada will have to borrow $40 billion this year "which is a record by a long margin for any nation of our size at any time in history."

"The thing that is really terrifying is not this year, it's next year. The country will not survive if we try and borrow another $40 billion next year."

Meanwhile, the Provincial Secretary's Ministry has distributed a five-color, six-page brochure to mark B.C. Day, Aug. 2 this year.

The brochure, titled Living Heritage, features pictures of Bennett and four cabinet ministers.

It cost $4,000 to $5,000, said editor Enrico Diano, and 13,000 copies were distributed.

Vancouver Board of Trade Party On Wonderful Trip Through Central B.C.

Entertainment Provided at All Points en Route and Opportunity Given to See the Country and Natural Resources—Visit to Terrace and the Hazeltons Was Great Revelation to the Men From the South

The Vancouver Board of Trade party that visited this district this week came to see the country and to get acquainted with the people. The other reason was to develop closer business relations between the north and the south. In all the speeches made by the visitors the key-note was co-operation, not only between the north and the south, but between towns and between individuals. The trip was a great success from an educational point of view and in getting acquainted with the people. The success along co-operative lines will be better known a year hence when the towns, and business firms and producers in the north have had an opportunity of demonstrating their willingness to support each other and to act in unison for the larger tidings.

Terrace declared a special holiday last Tuesday in honor of the visit of thirty-five members of the Vancouver Board of Trade, who arrived very early in the morning by special train from Prince Rupert. The party had breakfast at the Terrace Hotel about nine o'clock and then the citizens took their visitors for a drive around the district, going up on the bench, where a view of the beautiful Valley is obtained. Descending from the bench, the procession wended its way among the small farms until Henry Frank's place was reached. Frank's farm is one of the show-places of Terrace, and the visitors were greatly impressed with the development which has taken place on those 35 acres. It was a demonstration of what will result from labor put on the land. Then the procession went around to Mr. Keith's home and orchard, and from there over the bridge into Lakelse Valley as far as the Michaud Bros.' experimental farm. While Frank's place and Keith's orchard demonstrated the commercial end of agriculture and horticulture, the Michaud place revealed the results of experimenting with fruit, trees, flowers, etc. It was a wonderful lesson to the Vancouver men.

Leaving Michaud's farm, the party returned to the new bridge over the Skeena, and participated in the opening ceremonies.

The feature of the Terrace entertainment, other than the drive, was a complimentary banquet given by the citizens in the

G. W. V. A. Hall. Nearly two hundred gathered around the festive board. The features of the menu were fresh trout and strawberries and cream. The Terrace strawberry was one of the chief topics of conversation, and the special flavor will long stay with the visitors. The banquet was served by the local ladies, and they received a good deal of credit for the success of the affair.

Following the luncheon, during which the orchestra furnished music, short speeches, outlining the resources of the district, were made by Chairman J. M. Hatt, J. K. Frost on timber, E. T. Kenney on agriculture, and Mr. Hopper on minerals.

Chairman Hatt then called on President Dollar of the Vancouver Board of Trade to take charge. The visitor conveyed greetings from Vancouver to Terrace, and then advised Terrace to get busy and organize a board of trade. He then called on Mayor L. D. Taylor of Vancouver, A. M. Creery, M.L.A., J. M. Dixon, chairman of the organization committee, A. A. Milledge, manager of the B.C. Products Bureau, and Chris. McCrae, M.L.A., for short speeches. The keynote of all these addresses was co-operation as the only solution of the problems of the district, of the province, and of the individual.

When the speeches were over, the visitors just had time to go to their train and proceed to Hazelton.

At Terrace the Vancouver Board of Trade was met by Dr. H. C. Wrinch, M.L.A., and C. H. Sawle, a deputations from Hazelton and New Hazelton. This deputations participated in the Terrace entertainment, and on the way to Hazelton completed arrangements for the local entertainment.

At Kitwanga the party was taken in charge by Harlan I. Smith, who showed them the famous totem poles.

Upon arrival at Hazelton station the visitors were met by autos and taken for a drive to New Hazelton, where a stop was made at the Omineca Herald office to view a mineral collection and to see a sample of the flowers, fruit and vegetables grown in The Herald gardens.

The next stop was made at the Hospital, where agriculture and horticulture are carried on on a large scale on the hospital farm. Then the party drove into Hazelton, where a concert was given by local artistes.

Terrace

Constable and Mrs. Eggleshaw left on Saturday for Vancouver, where Mr. Eggleshaw expects to enter the military hospital for treatment. They will be away about a month.

Two visitors two town were guests at the local bastille on Friday night, and each contributed $25 and costs to the provincial treasury for celebrating too boisterously at one of the hotels.

Capt. J. B. Colthurst and family, together with two boy guests from the south, are holidaying at Lakelse Lake. The Captain has acquired some acreage there and already has plans formulated for the construction of a cottage on the lake shore.

W. C. Sparkes is erecting a cottage on the Cowell pre-emption property at Lakelse Lake.

Born—to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Downing on Friday, July 17, a daughter.

Miss Dobb, of Prince Rupert, is spending a short holiday in Terrace, and is the guest of Mrs. E. T. Kenney.

Mrs. M. Anderson, of Pacific, was a visitor in town over the week-end.

U. St. Jacques was the victim of a painful accident last week, when the team he was driving with a load of poles went over the bank on the Terrace-Remo road. He was forced to go to the Hazelton Hospital for treatment.

The many friends of Mrs. W. J. Parsons were pleased to see her back home this week from Winnipeg, where she been under the care of an eye specialist for the past few weeks.

Bargaining rights are permanently impaired?

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation limiting public servants' wage increases and suspending collective bargaining in the next two years may be part of a hidden strategy to "permanently impair the bargaining rights" of federal employees, a committee of 10 public service unions said Tuesday.

The legislation is a far-reaching denial of rights and freedoms for 500,000 federal employees and should be withdrawn, the Inter-Union Committee Against Wage Controls told the Commons' miscellaneous estimates committee.

If the bill is passed despite labor opposition, it should be amended to ensure the right to collective bargaining is maintained and workers at the low end of the pay scale do not bear the brunt of the pay ceilings, the group said.

"The suspension of collective bargaining constitutes a prescription for poor employer-employee relations and in no way will serve to restrain the level of price increases in this country," said committee spokesman Jack Donegan, president of the 17,500-member Professional Institute of the Public Service.

"The bill will ensure that many problems in the work place go unresolved, festering like untreated sores and creating potentially explosive situations."

He said there is no reason to suspend negotiations on such issues as shift scheduling, grievance procedures, career development and part-time work.

The legislation, part of the inflation-fighting program outlined in the June 29 budget, limits public servants' wage increases to six per cent and five per cent during the next two years, respectively.

Donegan said the legislation is a discriminatory and unwarranted measure against workers who represent only five per cent of the labor force and have trailed the private sector in wage settlements.

Public servant wage controls will not reduce the inflation rate, interest rates or the deficit, add one cent to the value of the Canadian dollar or put unemployed Canadians back to work, he added.

Earlier, MPs from all three parties rushed to the defence of public servants after a business group called the workers a whining, privileged minority that wants power to "hold the Canadian taxpayer to ransom."

"You're using the language of Hitler," Rod Murphy, New Democrat member for the Northern Manitoba riding of Churchill, told the 5,000-member Canadian Organization of Small Business.

Dennis Dawson, Liberal MP for Louis-Hébert riding in Quebec City, rebuked group spokesman Geoffrey Hale for jokingly recounting what he said one senior public servant told him: It is cheaper to shoot a government employee than to fire him or her.

The businessmen told the committee the wage controls legislation is a good start.

Happy Gang Center welcomes public

Olson murders subject to authors' investigations

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clifford Robert Olson murdered 11 young people in southwestern B.C. and climaxed his sadistic orgy with a cash-for-bodies deal that shocked the nation.

Could he have been stopped before he completed his bloody nine-month rampage?

Yes, say newspapermen Jon Ferry and Damian Inwood in their book The Olson Murders which went on sale Tuesday.

"When the total picture is examined, it seems incredible that the police didn't catch on to Olson sooner," they write. "And once they did, Olson was still able to kill four more youngsters — right under the RCMP's nose."

"There are many reasons or excuses given by the RCMP. But in the final analysis, it's impossible to avoid the conclusion that, if the Mounties had been on their toes, they might have saved at least four and possibly as many as 10 lives."

Ferry and Inwood are Vancouver Province reporters who covered the Olson story for their newspaper. It culminated early this year in his confession and life sentence, followed by disclosure that up to $100,000 in government funds had been set aside for a trust fund for his wife and infant son for information leading to many of the mutilated bodies.

The authors and a partner formed a publishing company,

Cameo Books, to produce The Olson Murders. The 170-page paperback has a newsstand price of $3.95.

It promptly became the centre of a new controversy when families of some of the victims objected to its publication. But Ferry and Inwood said they obtained much of the material from the victims' relatives and noted a group of families launched a petition this week demanding a public inquiry into police handling of the case.

Plugging the murder investigation, along with a cluster of overlapping jurisdictions of RCMP detachments and municipal police forces in Greater Vancouver and the lower Fraser Valley, was the character of the killer himself.

Olson, 41 at the time of his murders, had spent much of his life behind bars for non-violent crimes such as fraud, theft and escaping custody. While he later became known for a variety of perversions, he had never been convicted of a sexual crime — a fact which subsequent reviews showed had kept his habits out of the reach of police computers.

But Ferry and Inwood write that Olson was an RCMP suspect in the disappearance of the first of his victims, a girl stabbed in November, 1980. RCMP abandoned their suspicions when a stronger suspect came up.

In January, Olson was jailed after a 16-year-old girl claimed he had abducted, raped and sodomized her. Charges were dropped when the Crown decided the girl was an unreliable witness — much to the chagrin, according to the book, of Squamish RCMP Cpl. Jim Hunter who believed the girl and knew Olson had escaped charges for previous sex offences.

In May, when three more children had died, Olson was arrested and charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency but was not held in custody. On July 7 he was charged with indecent assault and again released.

A July 15 meeting of joint police forces discussed surveillance of Olson, but it was late going into effect and was dropped after Olson got wise to it. The final four victims died between July 15 and July 30.

Last month, after a special assignment to investigate the affair, coroner Alan Askey recommended senior RCMP management reassess their procedures in continuing field investigations of serious crimes where there is a likelihood of public danger.

'Indians live under colonial government'

REGINA (CP) — Two hundred million indigenous people live under colonial government, Joe de la Cruz told delegates to the World Assembly of First Nations on Tuesday. "And we keep getting other people's ideas of what's good for us."

De la Cruz, president of the National Congress of American Indians, said the time is ripe for writing a covenant of rights of indigenous peoples.

Delegates to the conference were to review a draft of such a covenant, to be ready for presentation in 1984 to the United Nations, which has set up a special committee to study indigenous peoples' rights.

Jose Carlos Morales of Costa Rica, spokesman for Central American Indians and president of the World Council of Indigenous Peoples, said going to the UN is not without its problems but the step must be taken.

"We know the UN is controlled and dominated by ideology and special national interests but we have struggled for 500 years to take our case to the world," Morales said through a Spanish interpreter.

But he added that the assembly appears to be putting too much hope in the UN and advised a strengthening of native organizations first.

Morales predicted that certain Latin American countries whose population is mostly Indian will explode in revolt by the end of the century.

Earlier, Millian Painimal of Chile said Indians will seize power in Peru and Bolivia within 10 years.

Painimal, principal spokesman for the Mapuche Cultural Centre in Chile, said through an interpreter that Europeans have robbed indigenous Americans of an immense amount of wealth during the last 500 years.

The invaders destroyed Indians, Indian culture and a form of government which was more advanced than that of Europe at the time, Painimal said.

He said the Mapuche Indians of Chile have suffered "near genocide" at the hands of a right-wing military government but will survive.

"All attempts of the enemy at assimilation have failed because we are a different type of people," Painimal said. "Our languages and cultures have been maintained for centuries."

The United Nations should set up an education program for native cultures and the World Health Organization should sanction traditional Indian medicine, Painimal said. Speakers from North America, Australia and New Zealand described similar educational and cultural problems.

Each talked about being victimized by a foreign educational system and offered a similar solution — increased control of their children's education.

"Indian people recognize education as the key to equal opportunity and to social and economic mobility," said Verna Kirkness, director of the Indian teacher education program at the University of British Columbia.

"To make education meet Indian needs, there must be Indian input, Indian influence on the educational process on reserves and in provincial and territorial schools."

Robert Morgan, an Australian aborigine, said: "At no time do we wish for an aboriginal child to experience any kind of education that will draw him away from his aboriginal background."

Even the textbooks used in the white educational system work against instilling pride in indigenous culture, Morgan said.

"Our heritage is debased in most books and materials, our history is ignored and our language is ridiculed."

Pat Hohepa, a Maori from Auckland, said time is getting short for New Zealand's government to come to terms with Maori requests.

"There is an urgency that comes when time is running out," Hohepa said. "Even conservative Maori patience is running out."

"In our country, multiculturalism is a euphemism for separate development and a cover term for white distrust of all things Maori."

Doctors criticized for painkillers

TORONTO (CP) — Many terminally ill cancer patients suffer needlessly because Canadian doctors do not know how to use painkillers, a senior official in the federal Health Department and a spokesman for the Canadian Medical Association both say.

A. B. Morrison, assistant deputy minister of health, said Tuesday doctors overlook certain powerful painkillers and give inadequate doses of morphine. However, he did not agree with the campaign of a Niagara Falls, Ont., doctor to legalize the use of heroin for terminal cancer patients.

"There are drugs which control pain; they're just not using them properly," Morrison said.

Douglas Geekie, an information officer for the Canadian Medical Association, said not all physicians are as well trained or knowledgeable as they should be about treating intractable pain.

Geekie said hospitals set up drug practices years before doctors knew enough about cancer to tell who was terminal, and so they tend to use painkillers sparingly to avoid drug dependency.

Last week, Kenneth Walker, a Niagara Falls doctor who writes a syndicated newspaper column under the name W. Gifford Jones, delivered 14,000 letters to Health Minister Monique Bégin asking that the use of heroin be legalized for terminal cancer patients in pain.

Bégin has asked a committee of experts to examine the heroin issue.

Walker said patients suffer needlessly because they are given too small dosages of morphine and not enough of the drugs that can help alleviate pain.

Morrison said Walker had performed a public service by focusing attention on needless pain.

"He's absolutely right," Morrison said, adding that powerful painkillers such as Dilaudid are often overlooked by doctors.

Supt. Rodney Stamler of the RCMP's drug enforcement branch said hospitals would need a high level of security to protect pharmacy staff and drugs if heroin was legalized for medical use.

Large supplies of heroin in any one area would become target for thieves or addicts, Stamler said.

Doctors can legally order the administration of heroin supplies left in hospital pharmacies in 1955 when its use was banned. However, Canada would have to break its agreement with the World Health Organization and amend the regulations of the Narcotics Control Act to permit the limited use of heroin, Geekie said.

Bagdad bombed

Iraq said it repelled an Iranian air attack on the Iraqi capital of Baghdad today and shot down one of the raiding Phantom jet fighter-bombers. But Iran reported its planes succeeded in bombing oil facilities in Baghdad and causing heavy casualties and damage.

It was the first Iranian air raid on the Iraqi capital reported since early in the Iran-Iraq border war that began in September, 1980.

An Iraqi military spokesman said two Iranian Phantom jets trying to reach Baghdad were repulsed by Iraqi missiles. Quoted by Radio Baghdad, the spokesman said one of the planes was shot down and the second escaped.

The announcement said the pilot of the downed plane was killed and the co-pilot taken prisoner.

An Iranian war report carried by the official Iranian news agency said its planes scored a direct hit on the Iraqi oil refinery of Al-Dowrah on the outskirts of Baghdad. A Radio Tehran report said Iranian planes bombed "large parts of Iraq's oil installations in Baghdad," inflicting heavy casualties and damage.

The Iranian reports conceded one jet crashed due to "technical difficulty."

An Iranian magazine said a special "suicide unit" drawn from the Revolutionary Guards has been formed to launch human-wave assaults, cross minefields, barbed wire, deep canals and other Iraqi barricades to pave the way for Iranian tank and artillery columns.

The magazine, Payam Enghelab, organ of the revolutionary guards, said the unit is made up of "martyrdom-seeking" irregulars, and will be named "Khat-shakan," or line-breakers. It did not say when the unit would be deployed.

Meanwhile, fighting continued in the southeastern corner of Iraq between invading Iranian troops and Iraqi defenders.

The two countries' ground forces have been battling since Iranian forces crossed the Iraqi border eight days ago. Iraq said it made repeated air and tank assaults, inflicting staggering losses on the invaders. But reports from both sides indicated the Iranian troops are entrenched about five kilometres inside Iraq just north of Basra, Iraq's main oil port on the disputed Shatt-al-Arab estuary to the Persian Gulf.

Iraq said it repelled an Iranian air attack on the Iraqi capital of Baghdad today and shot down one of the raiders as its ground forces appeared to have stopped the Iranian advance on its chief port to the southeast.

An Iraqi military spokesman said two Iranian Phantom jets trying to reach Baghdad were repulsed by Iraqi missiles. Quoted by Radio Baghdad, the spokesman said one of the planes was shot down and the second escaped.

The announcement said the pilot of the downed plane was killed and the co-pilot taken prisoner.

Meanwhile, no change in positions was reported on the Basra front where the two countries' ground forces have been battling since Iranian forces crossed the Iraqi border eight days ago. Iraq said it made repeated air and tank assaults, inflicting staggering losses on the invaders. But reports from both sides indicated the Iranian soldiers were entrenched about five kilometers inside Iraq just north of Basra, Iraq's main oil port on the disputed Shatt-al-Arab estuary to the Persian Gulf.

The Iraqi news agency claimed 1,849 Iranian soldiers were killed and 15 tanks destroyed since Monday night in the Basra area. It said the heaviest fighting occurred Tuesday, when 1,500 of the massed Iranian soldiers were killed in a series of devastating raids by helicopter gunships.

Iranian war reports acknowledged that Iraqi forces have taken the offensive, but said two enemy counter-attacks inside Iraqi territory had been repelled. Tehran radio claimed 200 Iraqi soldiers killed or wounded and five tanks destroyed.

YOUR INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, JULY 22, 1982

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)

A lucky career break comes and romance too is highlighted. Travel, recreation, hobbies and sports also contribute to your happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)

Though a date may be changed, the alternative will prove to your liking. You may make important domestic decisions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)

You're happily on the go and can expect a busy day, with an influx of news and adventures. Home entertaining is favored later.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)

It's a good time to shop for the home. Local visits have romantic overtones and the creative should feel especially inspired.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22)

Despite an unexpected expense, your financial prospects improve now. Take the initiative in contacting others by phone or letter.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)

Working quietly from behind the scenes is advantageous. Toward nightfall, good news and social life make you happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

Take the lead in planning a party. Group activities are favored, but by evening you'll want some time for yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

A behind-the-scenes development works to your advantage careerwise. You'll be invited to a special event and romance is likely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Consult with business advisers about financial status. Lucky career developments should be kept confidential for now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)

You'll reach important decisions with close ties about the use of joint funds. Travel and affairs at a distance bring luck.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)

The accent is on togetherness with shared happiness between loved ones. A friend though may not be able to pay back a debt.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)

This is a good time to further career interests. You will receive recognition. Happiness in love marks the late evening.

YOU BORN TODAY are temperamental and creative. Both practical and idealistic, you sometimes have difficulty in reconciling these qualities. You'd make a fine public servant, for you're naturally interested in working for the betterment of mankind. Highly individualistic, you'll make an original contribution in your field. You may be especially talented in art, music, literature, sculpture or acting. You can be erratic and need self-discipline to make the most of your abilities. Though you're visionary, at times you're thrown off balance by little things. Birthdate of: Jason Roberts Jr. actor; Alexander Calder, sculptor; and Stephen Vincent Benet, poet.

CRYPTOQUIP 4-1

MWAC OJULLUJP BPJKO OKACPQ
MWAA LUAQ PBK

Yesterday's Cryptquip — OUR BIBLE STUDENT IS AVID ABOUT CREATIONS.
Today's Cryptquip clue: C equals D

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Ann Landers

Poor Ann

I'd like to say a word to those readers who have a lot to say about your old-fashioned hairdo, your tacky three-piece outfits, your teeth (are they real?) and your jewelry. Back off, folks.

Ann Landers can't please everybody. Some like her hair short, others like it long, lighter, darker, up, down, streaked or parted in the middle. Some prefer her with no jewelry, smiling, with teeth, without teeth, dimples, no dimples, the side view, front view. There's no pleasing everybody.

Leave Annie alone and instead write a letter to a person in prison, or a home for the elderly. They love to receive mail from Your Friend.

Thanks for the defence, but I enjoy all kinds of mail even the critical stuff. Let them write. It shows they care.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two key Arab diplomats are heading back to the Middle East after presenting President Reagan with a new plan to withdraw Palestinian guerrillas out of the range of Israeli guns as a first step to ending the crisis in Lebanon.

Returning home after hours of talks with Reagan and his leading advisers, the foreign ministers of Syria and Saudi Arabia agreed, it was learned, to seek approval from the states of the Arab League of this two-step approach:

— The 8,000 PLO fighters now under siege in West Beirut would move temporarily to northern Lebanon — away from Israeli forces and out of striking distance of Israel.

— In the easing of tensions that it is hoped would follow, Arab states would seek agreement among themselves for each to accept certain numbers of the PLO guerrillas, removing them permanently from Lebanon.

Reagan is said to have discussed these ideas in his 80-minute meeting Tuesday with Prince Saud al Faisal, foreign minister of Saudi Arabia, and with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam. U.S. officials described the ideas as useful and constructive, and said they pointed the way to possible progress.

It was learned that Khaddam followed his meeting with the president with a conference with Khalid Hassan, a key PLO representative.

But U.S. officials denied repeated reports that the PLO used the Arab League delegation here to pass messages to Reagan and George Shultz, his new state secretary.

New hints from PLO leaders that they are ready to recognize Israel in return for U.S. recognition of the PLO as the representative of the Palestinian people were "not floated in the meetings," said one U.S. official who asked not to be identified by name.

"Absolutely no message from the PLO was passed to us from the Arab League delegation," the official said.

Overall, the result of Tuesday's White House session was described by the U.S. side as helping the mission of U.S. special envoy Philip Habib, whose negotiations in Beirut are at or near an impasse.

At the core of the "new ideas" presented by the two foreign ministers is the suggestion that the United States secure the transfer of the PLO fighters in West Beirut to northern Lebanon while the diplomats try to get the Arab League to agree on a joint solution for their ultimate destination.

The U.S. participants at the meeting are said to have proposed "counter ideas" requiring further consultations.

The governments of both Israel and Lebanon are reported to want to have an ultimate destination for the PLO forces agreed to before any temporary arrangements are entered into.

Gay plague kills

OTTAWA (CP) — Four confirmed cases of the so-called gay plague that has killed at least 155 persons in the United States have surfaced in Canada, a federal Health Department doctor said Tuesday.

A possible fifth case of the disease, related to a breakdown in the body's immunity system, has yet to be confirmed, said Gordon Jessamine of the department's Laboratory Centre for Disease Control.

Three of the cases occurred in Montreal, one in Ontario and another in Vancouver, Jessamine said.

Only one of the five victims, a Montreal man, is still alive.

But there could be more cases in Canada than have been reported to the federal government, he said.

"It is entirely possible that people may have infections and it hasn't been identified by the physician or they may not have sought medical advice.

"The other possibility is that physicians don't know of our interest in this particular problem and haven't advised us of these cases."

It is also possible the disease is not new, he suggested.

Legionnaires' disease, which surfaced in 1976 and mystified doctors, was later found to have occurred before.

The new mystery disease first surfaced among male homosexuals in the United States and later in Haitian refugees, drug abusers and hemophiliacs.

In order to gather information on the disease, the Health Department has publicized the known cases in medical journals and contacted doctors who treated possible victims.

But doctors are not required by law to inform the department of potential cases.

And, unlike the United States, no special research is being done in Canada on the disease.

"We haven't identified enough cases yet," Jessamine said. "It's very difficult for a Montreal group to come up with some earth-shattering epidemiological, microbiological and immunological information on the basis of three cases."

The disease takes many forms but is associated with a breakdown of the body's immunity system that allows rare and often fatal diseases to take hold.

Initial symptoms can include various throat and skin infections such as a recurrence of latent herpes.

Two sometimes fatal forms of the disease include Kaposi's sarcoma, which can cause malignant tumors, and a rare form of pneumonia called pneumocystis carinii.

Companies report earnings drop

The devastating impact of the recession on corporate profits in Canada was bought home Tuesday when four companies from different sectors of the economy all announced drastically reduced earnings figures.

Southam Inc. reported a 37-per-cent drop in earnings for the first six months of the year and blamed slumping advertising for the fall.

The diversified publishing company said its profits to June 30 stood at $15.3 million or $1.03 a share on revenue of $414.06 million, down from $24.35 million or $1.96 a share on revenue of $391.39 million for the same period last year.

Meanwhile, profits in the second quarter of this year for Royal Trustco Ltd. of Toronto fell by 42 per cent from the record levels of a year ago, the trust and real estate company said.

Company president John Scholes said the results reflect continued pressure on Royal Trustco's real estate operations which have been hurt by the recession.

Denison Mines Ltd. of Toronto was also hit hard, announcing its six-month profit fell 53 per cent from the same period last year despite a 72-per-cent jump in sales.

The diversified Toronto-based natural resources company, with interests in uranium, coal and oil and gas production, said it made a profit of $17.4 million or 95 cents a share for the six-month period, compared with $37.6 million or $2.06 a share in the 1981 period.

Finally, Alcan Aluminium Ltd. of Montreal reported preliminary second-quarter profits of $5 million U.S., or six cents a share, down sharply from $89 million, or $1.09 a share, in the corresponding period last year, as earnings continue to slide because of declining prices of ingot products.

Net income for the first half of 1982 was $17 million, or 20 cents a share, compared with last year's $171 million, or $2.10 a share.

In another development, the country's two biggest airlines, facing losses and layoffs this year, admitted Tuesday ticket discounting has jeopardized their industry and called for greater restrictions on the four-year air-fare war.

Air Canada and CP Air officials told a Canadian Transport Commission hearing regulations are needed to curtail the increased use of so-called deep-discount fares and preserve the stability of the beleaguered airline industry.

The commission is holding hearings this week into proposed restrictions on reductions of more than 25 per cent off regular economy fares.

In other business news Friday:

— Lower U.S. interest rates sent stocks climbing on the Toronto market for the fifth straight day Tuesday as the Toronto composite index rose 4.32 to 1436.02. The Canadian dollar also continued to advance against its U.S. counterpart climbing 17-100 to close at $0.7967 U.S., up from 0.7950.

— Food costs leaped 2.2 per cent for the second consecutive month in June, but the overall annual inflation rate still slowed to 11.2 per cent from 11.8 in May. Finance Minister Allan MacEachen told the Commons on Tuesday the Statistics Canada figures reveal some progress has been made in the fight against inflation.

— The Canadian Petroleum Association said increased government revenues in 1981 led to a 12-per-cent decline in oil and gas exploration. Frontier exploration increased significantly but this was counterbalanced by a major drop in Western Canada, where exploration in some places came to a standstill, the association said.

Natives dance

REGINA (CP) — A boomerang flew down Victoria Avenue.

A band of Australian aboriginal dancers staged an impromptu performance in the lobby of the Sheraton Centre.

Save for these few stray bits of color, the business sessions that started Tuesday at the World Assembly of First Nations here have been a deadly serious affair.

Native dress — from the brilliantly colored clothing of the Samis peoples of northern Scandinavia to Indian headdresses — is for the most part saved for the cultural affairs.

Dress at conference tables ranges from jeans and T-shirts to pinstriped suits. "Outcasts" was the message emblazoned on the T-shirt of one Aborigine.

The issue on the agenda of the 2,000 delegates representing about 24 countries is survival.

The discussions Tuesday ranged from charges of genocidal slaughter in Central America to the marketing of arts and crafts and the use of native medicines.

But the goal for all native representatives is self-determination in a "world full of conflict, hatred, self-interest and selfishness," said Millian Painimil of Chile, vice-president of the World Council of Indigenous peoples.

Once Christianity was the excuse for colonization and domination; now its role is "filled by political ideology," he told the politics and law conference.

To the disappointment of some of the dozens of attending reporters from around the world, there have been no strident protests — just a relentless

Blue Jays pick on Royals, edge closer to .500

TORONTO (CP) — Manager Bobby Cox had two main goals for his Toronto Blue Jays prior to the 1982 American League baseball season — respectability and .500 baseball.

It didn't take long for his club to gain the opposition's respect and, after a 9-2 drubbing of Kansas City Royals on Tuesday night, the elusive .500 mark is four victories away.

"We can't get too over-confident," Cox said after the Blue Jays tied a team record with their sixth consecutive victory. "These things can end as fast as they started."

While the Blue Jays improved their won-lost record to 43-47, the Royals slipped to 48-42 with their ninth loss in 10 games.

Starting pitchers Larry Gura of the Royals and hometown favorite Dave Stieb each had impressive streaks heading into the contest.

Left-hander Gura had 10-0 lifetime record against Toronto, while righthander Stieb was 3-0 against the Royals this season.

Stieb tossed a seven-hitter en route to his ninth victory against 10 losses. His nine-inning effort against the Royals enabled him to take the AL lead in complete games with 11. Gura, 10-7, and Stieb were locked in a scoreless duel until the Blue Jays broke the game open with four runs in the fourth inning.

Designated hitter Barry Bonnell led off the inning with the fourth Toronto base hit off Gura and promptly stole second. Jesse Barfield walked and, after Leon Roberts struck out, Willie Upshaw loaded the base with a single.

Gura walked Buck Martinez on a full count to put Toronto ahead 1-0 and shortstop Alfredo Griffin followed with a two-run single to left.

Griffin extended his streak of errorless games to 28, the longest current streak by an AL shortstop.

Damasco Garcia, who stretched his consecutive-game hitting streak to 13 with a lead-off single in the first inning, collected his second hit of the game and drove in the fourth Toronto run with a single to right.

Gura gave way to Mike Armstrong and the Kansas City reliever struck out pinch-hitter Garth Iorg to quell the uprising.

The Blue Jays scored two more runs in the seventh and three others in the eighth.

Rookie Steve Hammond accounted for both Kansas

City runs with a two-run homer in the fifth after Willie Aikens had doubled.

Left-hander Vida Blue, 6-7, will try to stop the Blue Jays tonight in the final game of the three-game series, against righthander Jim Clancy, 8-7.

In other American League action Wednesday night, it was: Minnesota Twins 5 Milwaukee Brewers 3; California Angels 7 Baltimore Orioles 4; Detroit Tigers 1 Chicago White Sox 0; Oakland A's 6 Cleveland Indians 4 and Seattle Mariners 6 New York Yankees 5. Texas Rangers and Boston Red Sox were rained out.

Twins 5 Brewers 3
Kent Hrbek called his slide good, aggressive baseball. To Jim Gantner and his manager, Harvey Kuenn, it was cause for revenge.

The result was a 10-minute brawl Wednesday night that marred Minnesota's 5-3 American League victory over Milwaukee Brewers.

The fight didn't occur until the sixth inning, but tempers started to flare in the fifth when Hrbek, who drove in two runs for the Twins, slammed his knee into Brewers' second baseman Gantner, knocking him out of the game with a bruised thigh.

In the next inning, Robin Yount crashed into Twins shortstop Lenny Fiedor, and both benches cleared. When the fight was over, umpire Ross Goetz ejected Hrbek and Bob McClure of the Brewers.

McClure, a pitcher, was not playing.

Mariners 6 Yankees 5

Seattle snapped New York's five-game winning streak despite four RBI, including a three-run homer, by Graig Nettles. Bobby Brown's double and an error by right fielder Ken Griffey allowed Julio Cruz to score the winning run for the Mariners in the ninth.

Tigers 1 White Sox 0
Dan Petry (10-6) pitched a four-hitter as Detroit beat the White Sox for the first time in the last eight meetings. Lou Whitaker had three hits and drove in the game's only run to key the Tigers' offense.

A's 6 Indians 4

Oakland snapped its six-game losing streak as Mike Norris (5-6) scattered nine Cleveland hits and Mickey Klutts knocked in two runs. Klutts, Jeff Burroughs and Dwayne Murphy each had RBI doubles for the A's, while Rickey Henderson stole his 88th and 89th bases.

Weaver laughs off "holiday"

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver held a light-hearted news conference late Tuesday after he was suspended seven days and fined $2,000 by American League baseball president Lee MacPhail for striking an umpire during an argument.

Weaver's fifth suspension, the longest of his 14-year major-league career as manager of the Orioles, resulted from his making contact with umpire Terry Cooney in a game last Saturday night.

"I love it," Weaver said of his seven days off in the middle of what he contends will be his last season. "What could be better?"

"I'm going to relax and enjoy myself, and hope that the Baltimore Orioles win some games."

Brooks Robinson,

former Baltimore third baseman turned broadcaster, interjected: "You didn't have that much fun 10 years ago."

Weaver said: "I've learned to enjoy it, Brookie."

The head of the major-league umpires' union, meanwhile, said the penalty should have been more severe, even though it was the stiffest in MacPhail's eight years as league president.

"We are extremely disappointed with the penalty that the league president chose to impose," said Richie Phillips, executive director of the Major League Umpires Association. "The association feels it was most severe conduct to be dealt with in a most severe penalty."

Phillips said Weaver deserved to be suspended for the rest of the season.

"But I can see where he (MacPhail) did not want to hurt the players, team and fans and in light of that, I think $10,000 and a 15-day suspension would have been appropriate," he said.

In a prepared handwritten statement, which the club mimeographed and passed out to the media, Weaver joked that his vacation was unfair because the umpires are given two weeks off during the year.

Weaver also said he expected to multiply the amount of his fine five to 10 times by accepting personal appearances and making television and radio spots during his time off.

MacPhail did not quite see the humor in the situation when he took his action against Weaver earlier in the day. The league president said Cooney reported being struck twice in the face by Weaver, and the manager acknowledged there had been unintentional contact.

"A close review of the film shows that there was contact by Weaver's right hand or fist to umpire Cooney's face at least once."

Phillips said MacPhail "failed to take into consideration not only the act but Weaver's record — 84 ejections — which is probably greater than all the other active managers combined."

Last season, MacPhail suspended Oakland A's manager Billy Martin for one week and fined him $1,000 for throwing dirt at Cooney during an argument in a game at Toronto. Martin appealed the ruling, then later withdrew his appeal, served the suspension and apologized to Cooney.

Semenko asking $200,000 next year

EDMONTON (CP) — The difference in the spending philosophies of Edmonton Oilers General Manager Glen Sather and Los Angeles Kings owner Jerry Buss could leave National Hockey League superstar Wayne Gretzky without the man regarded as his personal bodyguard.

Rugged Dave Semenko, a six-foot-three, 215-pound left winger known throughout the league more for his fists than his hockey talent, is testing the free agency market. Buss's Kings are one of the teams interested in his services for next season.

The Edmonton Journal reported this week that the Kings have offered Semenko $200,000 U.S., and Semenko said late Tuesday his agent has talked to the Kings "a couple of times."

John Woolf, Los Angeles assistant general manager, nearly laughed at the $200,000 figure and said in a telephone interview

Tuesday the Kings "sure haven't done anything in that direction."

Sather said Tuesday he had talked to Kings General Manager George Maguire and was told there was no offer made.

Does Semenko think a team would offer $200,000 for a player of his limited talent? "You never know, L.A. is a little different in the way they spend money."

What he does know is that Sather is a tough bargainer. "That's part of my job," said Sather.

"I feel if a guy can play on this club he should earn the type of money he's worthy of. On the other hand, if you don't win in the first round of the playoffs why should you get a raise? because you scored 30 or 40 goals? The object of professional hockey is to win . . . Semenko said he hopes to hear from his lawyer in the next couple of days about the Los Angeles talks as well as calls from a few U.S. teams on the East Coast.

Sather, who has in the past said Semenko is one of the more valuable Oilers, said he will do everything he can to persuade him to remain in Edmonton.

"I think he's had an opportunity here to develop as a hockey player and not just a tough guy," Sather said. "We've emphasized his role on the team as being not just an enforcer but a hockey player."

Semenko, who scored a professional career high 12 goals and had 12 assists in 56 games last season, said he's aware other teams may want him just as an enforcer.

Ballard to sue NHL

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday he will file a $20-million lawsuit against the NHL and Buffalo Sabres unless a dispute over his attempt to relocate a farm club is settled by Friday.

"I'm going to sue the hell out of them — the Sabres and the NHL as well," Ballard said Tuesday. "I will sue them $10 million each just for a start because of the interruption of business."

"I am so sure I will win this thing that it isn't even funny."

The threatened suit stems from a dispute with the American Hockey League, a farm system for the NHL teams, over its recent refusal to approve transfer of the Maple Leafs' farm team from Moncton, N.B., to St. Catharines, Ont.

Seven members of the AHL board of governors supported the move to St. Catharines, but two NHL parent clubs — the Sabres and Philadelphia Flyers — voted against it. Winnipeg and Pittsburgh abstained. Any transfer must be approved by nine votes.

Acting through their Rochester, N.Y., affiliate, the Sabres blocked the transfer to prevent the AHL club from cutting into their ticket market in the St. Catharines area.

Ballard said St. Catharines is the official marketing area of the Leafs, "and has been for 50 years," despite the ruling of NHL President John Zeigler who said the area is an area of overlap of the marketing areas of both teams.

The blocked move has irked members of St. Catharines city council and some local residents, who recently travelled across the border in a bus to stage a protest at the Sabres' office in Buffalo.

The AHL has agreed to hold another vote Friday when the league meets in Boston.

Mahaffey faces changes

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — John Mahaffey will face a greatly changed golf course — and a surprisingly good field — when he tees off in the defence of his title Thursday in a $350,000 golf tournament.

Changes, some of them major revisions, have been made on eight holes on the Kingsmill Golf Club Course, the subject of some criticism last season when the hilly layout served as a Professional Golfers' Association tournament site for the first time.

New greens have been built on five holes, new tees put in on two others and minor changes made to still another hole. The third and fourth holes were rebuilt almost completely. The changes reduced the length of the course from 6,822 yards to 6,684.

"The changes have made a vastly improved course," said host pro Curtis Strange, one of the leading contenders for the $63,000 first prize. "It is a much fairer course, but the changes haven't taken away the character of the course, just improved it."

Mahaffey also faces a large number of leading players who competed in the British Open last week, including Bobby Clampett.

Clampett led through three rounds at Troon, Scotland, before drifting back into the pack as Tom Watson came on to win his fourth British Open title.

Watson will not compete again until the PGA national championship. Mahaffey, winner of six career titles including the PGA, skipped the British Open to concentrate on preparations for this event.

Possibly his biggest challenge is Tom Purtzer, a strong fourth-place finisher in Scotland. Purtzer finished third in this event last year.

Others who made the return trip across the Atlantic to compete in this tournament include 1981 player of the year Bill Rogers, Bruce Lietzke, Hubert Green, Fuzzy Zoeller, Ed Sneed, Tom Weiskopf and Masters champion Craig Stadler.

Expos get clobbered 10-1 in L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pedro Guerrero knocked in five runs with a homer and two doubles to lead a 13-hit Los Angeles attack as the Dodgers routed Montreal 10-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Jerry Reuss in a National League baseball game Tuesday night.

Reuss, 10-7, struck out eight and did not walk a batter in hurling his fifth complete game of the season. The only run he surrendered came in the fourth inning and was unearned.

The Dodgers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning of Charlie Lea, 7-6. Steve Sax singled and Guerrero belted his 18th homer of the season.

Mike Scioscia homered in the second off Lea, his third of the season, to make it 3-0, and the Dodgers added two more runs in the third on Ron Cey's two-out, two-run single.

Los Angeles broke the game open in the sixth inning, batting around to score five runs off Ray Burris. Only one run in the inning was earned because of an error by Expos' third baseman Tim Lincecum.

Steve Garvey singled to lead off the big inning, and two outs later, Reuss singled. Sax got an infield single to load the bases and Bill Russell singled home the first run. Wallace then muffed Dusty Baker's grounder, allowing the second run to score and Guerrero doubled to left centre to clear the bases.

In other National League games, it was San Diego Padres 2 Philadelphia Phillies 0; Chicago Cubs 5 Houston Astros 3; Pittsburgh Pirates 3 Cincinnati Reds 1; Atlanta Braves 8 St. Louis Cardinals 6; and San Francisco Giants 5 New York Mets 1.

Padres 2 Phillies 0
John Montefusco knew San Diego Padres had been playing badly since the baseball all-star break and he decided to do something about it. There was only one thing that stood in his way — Steve Carlton.

Montefusco combined with Luis deLeon on a two-hitter as the Padres snapped a five-game losing streak with a 2-0 National League victory over Carlton and Philadelphia Phillies.

Montefusco (8-5), who left after seven innings because of a blister on his right hand, retired the first 13 Philadelphia batters and gave up singles to Bo Diaz and Carlton. The right-hander struck out two and did not walk a batter.

Carlton, 12-9, who had his five-game winning streak snapped, went the distance and gave up six hits. The left-hander struck out eight and now has 160 for the year, tying him with Mario Soto of Cincinnati for the league lead.

Braves 6 Cardinals 6
Claudell Washington capped a three-run fifth-inning rally with a two-run single as Atlanta beat St. Louis and ran its winning streak to four games.

Pirates 3 Reds 1
John Candelaria and two relievers combined on a five-hitter as Pittsburgh handed Cincinnati its fifth straight loss. The Pirates went ahead in the fifth when Dale Berra singled, and later scored on Johnny Ray's RBI grounder.

Cubs 5 Astros 3
Pinch-hitter Bobby Molinaro smashed a bases-loaded double in the eighth inning to drive in three runs and power Chicago past Houston.

Giants 5 Mets 1
Reggie Smith had two-run single in a five-run third inning and Rich Gale and Al Holland stopped New York on seven hits. Gale (4-9) gave up all the Mets hits, while Holland pitched no-hit ball over the final 3 2-3 innings to collect his first save.

Ex. Park survives on Sweep Six

A willingness to change with the times is aiding management and horsemen at Exhibition Park in Vancouver.

Prior to the start of the current meeting, director of racing Merv Peters somewhat reluctantly announced the introduction of Sweep Six wagering. The hierarchy at Ex Park was not 100 per cent sure the wager would prove successful, but noticing the success of the bet at Cloverdale Raceway in Surrey, was smart enough to adjust with the times.

While some forms of exotic wagering have not gone over in other parts of the country and in the U.S., the chance of making a big score is certainly attractive to B.C. residents.

Most tracks in North America are struggling during these financially tough times.

An extreme example is Assinibola Downs in Winnipeg, which went into receivership last week and is to re-open Friday under the direction of the provincial government and Jim Wright, who sold the track to Michael Gobuty in May of 1981. At the time of the closure, attendance was down 14.6 per cent and handle 12.9 per cent from a year ago. The Sweep Six wasn't the boost it might have been as the Manitoba government takes an additional five per cent (22.1 total) out of the dollar on Sweep Six and tractor wagers.

The story is quite different in Vancouver as the Sweep Six is responsible for a surge in handle and attendance of late. Before the bet caught on, figures were down from a year ago. With a flourish during the recent carryover — which lasted seven cards — figures are now up.

As race goes are well aware, handle and attendance records were established as the Sweep Six pot grew to more than $2.2 million. By the time the pot was distributed, the year's average handle improved from minus .54 per cent to plus .632 per cent. Attendance, which was up for the first time in four years in 1981, went from minus 1.94 to plus 5.52.

One concern with the Sweep Six at Ex Park is that it can get too big. With a couple of million on the line, it's only natural for jockeys and horsemen to feel added pressure. The track is considering applying to Agriculture Canada for a five-day carryover limit.

Another alternative might be to lower the bet from $2 to $1. That would give the punter twice the combinations for his money and the chances of the bet running for more than a week would be greatly reduced.

Natives dance

demand for the return of native nationhood.

The assembly has been a bit of a disappointment to Regina merchants, who had banked on the 30,000 visitors which organizers initially hoped to draw.

They've since revised their estimates to about 20,000 for the Indian rodeo, the pow-wow, the Saskatchewan Indian summer games and a host of cultural activities throughout the week.

Fewer than 2,000 delegates were registered as of Tuesday for the business sessions, less than half the 5,000 predicted.

Still, a survey of major hotels indicated most are almost fully booked after nervously coping with a large number of "no-show" reservations at the conference start last Sunday.

News that the smaller than expected crowd is going to throw the assembly into a deficit doesn't seem to worry hotel managers. Most demanded cash in advance before booking the dozens of conference rooms being used.

Polish martial law relaxed for independence day the eve of Poland's national independence day, a day traditionally used by the government to announce pleasant news. The speech was greeted by mild applause.

Jaruzelski said travel restrictions would be eased, ending the virtual ban on trips to the West.

He said restrictions on postal and telephone communications would be ended. Parcels can be mailed again without being searched or conforming to special requirements, and senders of telegrams will not be required to show identification.

Although 'long-distance telephone service within Poland was restored some time ago, telephone calls abroad have been permitted only for special organizations and institutions.

The military ruler also said he has ordered reinstatement of "a meaningful group" of the hundreds of religious, social and cultural organizations banned under martial law — most of which have already gotten back into full swing.

He said Poles who were abroad when martial law was declared last Dec. 13

"can return to Poland at any time ... so long as they have not engaged deliberately and actively in activities directed against the interests of our state."

But the contents of the speech indicated that the military government has thus far not solved two of the major problems it was created to solve — the future of trade unions and declining economic production.

Jaruzelski offered a vague promise that future trade unions would not be like the submissive, government-dominated unions prior to 1980, nor like Solidarity at the height of its power.

"There is no doubt that trade unions must be self-governing and independent of the administration," he said.

Jaruzelski acknowledged that economic production is still low, although he said martial law has laid the groundwork for a recovery with the aid of the Soviet Union. As the government has tried to do since December, he placed the blame for the current situation on the United States and the union dissidents.

Scotland Yard follows Hyde Park bomb clues a mixture of explosives and nails — sliced through a detachment of the Queen's ceremonial mounted guard in Hyde Park and ripped apart a Regent's Park bandstand where a Green Jackets regiment band was playing. In cables sent to The Associated Press, the Irish Republican Army's political arm, Sinn Féin, said the Irish guerrilla army was responsible for the first IRA bombings on British soil in eight months. A Canadian woman was among those reported injured in the Hyde Park bombing. Diane Elder, 38, of Burlington, Ont., visiting her native England for the first time since moving to Canada with her family 30 years ago, is reported in serious condition in hospital and may lose her legs, relatives in Canada said. Elder is formerly of the Halifax area. The Yard said detectives in London, Dublin and Belfast were exchanging information on the whereabouts of terrorist suspects and possible movement of explosives.

Assistant Police Commissioner Gilbert Kelland said the Yard is trying to trace the movements of the blue Austin Morris car that contained the Hyde Park nail bomb. He appealed for owners of vacant garages in and around London to contact police if Irishmen recently used them, and said the Yard was considering a search of the thousands of rental garages in the capital.

Thatcher told the House of Commons: "These callous and cowardly crimes have been committed by evil and brutal men who know nothing of democracy and we shall rest until they are brought to justice."

In Dublin, Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey and opposition Fine Gael leader Garret FitzGerald echoed Thatcher's condemnation. The Dublin government favors unification of the Roman Catholic Irish republic with Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland but has outlawed the IRA.

Northern Ireland's Social Democratic and Labor party, the province's Catholic party, said the attacks hindered the cause of Irish unity, while the Protestant Ulster Unionist party called them "yet another example of the IRA's utter disregard for human life."

The first bomb, planted in a car parked near the famed Rotten Row bridge path around Hyde Park, was exploded by remote control at 10:45 a.m. It hurled nails through a squad of the Blues and Royals Regiment of the Household Cavalry as they trotted past spectators to the daily Changing of the Guard ceremony at the Horse Guards — parade ground.

Two guards were killed, and one of four soldiers who were wounded died early today. The blast also wounded 22 other people, including three soldiers and two policemen, and seven cavalry horses were killed or had to be destroyed.

"I saw one trooper with his head blown off and two others lying on the ground covered in blood," said businessman John Marriott. "Horses were literally thrown in the air and there were injured lying all over the place," said Patrick Moran, a carpenter.

Two hours later, a time bomb exploded under a Regent's Park bandstand where the Green Jackets' regimental band was playing during a two-week break from duty in Northern Ireland. Six band members were killed and 24 band members and four spectators were injured, Scotland Yard reported.

"Everything seemed to come up from the bottom of the bandstand and blow right in the air — the bodies, the instruments, everything," said one witness, Ronald Benjamin. "There were mangled bodies all over the deck chairs."

The Hyde Park blast shook the windows at Buckingham Palace one kilometre away, a palace spokeswoman said.

The Queen, who was in the palace at the time, went ahead with a palace garden party for 9,000 people later in the day, but she cancelled a visit tonight to the Royal International Horse Show at Wembley. A spokesman said the cancellation was due to the removal of a wisdom tooth last weekend, not the bombings.

Beirut rich eat expensive food

BEIRUT (AP) — With the Israeli siege of West Beirut dragging through its sixth week, food prices have doubled and trebled for the 500,000 inhabitants of the Moslem sector of the Lebanese capital.

Food is still readily available for those with money. But tens of thousands are out of work and running short of funds.

Many others, including Palestinians driven by the fighting from the refugee camps on the southern outskirts of the city and Lebanese residents, have run out. They are dependent on friends, relatives and relief agencies.

Sicknesses related to nutritional deficiencies are starting to show up. Dr. Faez Rashid of the Haigazin University Hospital said he has treated 100 to 200 cases of such illnesses as gastroenteritis, scabies, paratyphoid and diarrhea.

"It's the result of nutritional problems, of families living with each other, no money," he said. "Especially with children, it's gastroenteritis, vomiting, diarrhea from no good food, no good water."

"It's increasing every day. It's getting worse and worse. It will become serious if conditions continue."

A fear of epidemics — which so far haven't developed — is fed by piles of garbage on the streets, a population explosion among the rats and the shortage of good water.

None of the relief agencies have been able to get more than basic supplies — usually flour and rice — through the Israeli blockade.

"If the situation continues, it will create terrible problems," said Lebanese Information Minister Michel Edde in an interview.

The Palestinians who fled from the refugee camps took over schools, public buildings and apartments whose owners were absent. Many were fed by relief agencies, mostly from supplies already stored in the city.

Aid officials say they now are getting many Lebanese asking for help, and they expect many more. But even now they don't have enough supplies to feed all the applicants.

"We are getting a steady stream of Lebanese families coming in here asking for food," said Bisharah Libbus, a member of the biology faculty at Haigazin University who heads an aid-distribution centre.

"These people are not poor. They are decent people not used to begging. They find it shameful. The fact that they do it means they have to."

"We can't buy anything; we live on starch — potatoes, rice, whatever we can get," said Mohammed Jibak, a 60-year-old laborer. He and his family were forced to abandon their home near the airport and moved in a room in the centre of the city.

Jibak said neither he nor his 18-year-old son, also a day laborer, have been able to earn anything in the last six weeks. Most of their food comes from friendly neighbors, the rest from a relief agency.

A major worry is Jibak's six-week-old granddaughter.

Rail repairs started

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — The Canadian National Railways-CP Rail joint line from here to Armstrong, closed by a freight train derailment and explosion Monday, should be reopened by Thursday, a CP Rail spokesman said Tuesday night.

The cleanup was being hampered by heavy rain, which has turned the crash site 25 kilometres north of here into a quagmire, said Don Bower, CP Rail regional public relations director.

No one was injured in the crash, in which a 21-car CNR train pulled by four locomotives derailed and sideswiped four tank cars full of gasoline parked on a siding.

Two locomotives and eight cars were derailed.

The crew on the train jumped to safety before the crash. One tank car's cargo spilled out and caught fire, igniting wood chips in two of the train's cars. The fire was extinguished in 2½ hours, but the cars were heavily damaged and about 150 metres of track has to be rebuilt.

The cleanup is being done by CP Rail, which controls the section of the line where the crash occurred. Bower did not know what arrangements would be made between the rail firms for damages and repair costs.

Three cranes were at the site to lift the derailed cars back onto the tracks.

"Unburnt fuel from the smashed tanker was transferred into tank trucks Tuesday, Bower said, a delicate operation supervised by a representative of the federal bureau of explosives.

Her mother was killed by a shell two hours after the baby was born. The baby is fed mostly on dried baby formula given by neighbors.

"I don't care who is right or wrong, nor does my son," said Jibak, quietly weeping. "I just want to go back to what we were before these troubles and live in peace."

The Time of The Big Lie

Joseph Goebbels, the Nazi Minister of Propaganda, should not be forgotten by the communists. When the Third Reich was at the height of its power, he said: "If you want someone to believe your lie, you should make it a big lie."

These words became part and parcel of the biggest propaganda machine in the world, built by Moscow and directed at the Soviet population and outside the USSR.

One could arrive at the conclusion that internal propaganda efforts of the Soviet ideologists have failed. In fact, almost no one in the USSR believes in what the Kremlin offers them as ideological food. When Pravda, the official Soviet newspaper which distributes 10 million copies daily, writes that the living standard in the USSR is the highest in the world or that Soviet medicine is able to cure diseases which are incurable in the West, only recent kindergarten graduates are enthusiastic in swallowing it. Lining up for hours and hours to get 200 g (half a pound) of meat or butter once a month, and considering themselves lucky if they are able to get it, prevents the Soviet population from being fanatical supporters of the communist system.

The events in Poland are probably the best evidence of the absolute mistrust the communist leaders are facing in their own countries.

The unbelievable starts in the civilized and well educated West. The most elementary lie of the Soviet propaganda machine is easily accepted by our liberal professors and reporters who, after tasting caviar in the special restaurants for foreigners or at the receptions in the Kremlin, draw the highly intellectual conclusion that the entire Soviet population shares with them these gastronomic delights.

Churches and synagogues, where 'progressive' foreigners are invited to attend services, impress them so deeply that they are no longer concerned by the fact that Soviet believers are banned from attending them after the guests have left. The example of the Reverend Billy Graham is probably the most illuminating one, but there are countless examples which unfortunately are not known to the broad public in the West.

One professor of Carleton University visiting the USSR recently was asked to a Moscow synagogue in order to be convinced that freedom of religion in the Motherland of Socialism was flourishing. He was even permitted to speak to Jewish activists who came to the synagogue hoping to pass along to him information about the persecution of the Jewish religion and culture in the USSR. The leader of this group, Raphael Brailovski, had been imprisoned for several months before this visit. The professor did not know that the entire group was arrested after they met with him in the synagogue. Possibly, if the Canadian guest had been more curious instead of merely wishing to see what suited him, he would not assert in his lectures following his USSR visit that he was surprised at the level of religious freedom in Russia.

The biggest lie which Moscow has successfully introduced to the Western public is the so-called 'struggle for peace' which, according to official propaganda, has become an inseparable part of the Soviet way of life. Almost every wall in the streets of Soviet cities is decorated with slogans like "Long Live Peace" or "The Communist Party of the USSR is a Protector of World Peace."

"I was very pleased to see such things at every step," said one Canadian businessman to me. "It is much better and more human than to write 'Buy Coca Cola,' isn't it?"

No, sir, it isn't. It isn't because almost 40 per cent of the Soviet budget is spent on the military buildup. But, unfortunately for this naive Canadian businessman, the communists do not write this on the walls.

One should not be paranoid and believe that all the wrongs in the world are on the eastern side of the Iron Curtain. But one should have enough common sense than to accept the vicious lie directed towards us, simply because this lie is a big one.
